

在EBSCOhost中找期刊雜誌

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. At the top, the browser address bar displays the URL: <http://web.ebscohost.com/ehost/search?vid=2&hid=115&sid=69fed5ec-9a84-4f72-b3ba-6161fc7f3890@sessionmgr102>. Below the address bar, a navigation bar contains several tabs: "關鍵詞" (Keywords), "出版品" (Publications), "主題詞" (Subject Terms), "引用參考" (Citations), and "更多" (More). The "出版品" tab is highlighted with a red box. An arrow points from this box to the text "點選[出版品]" (Click [Publications]).

Below the navigation bar, the EBSCOHOST logo is visible. To the right of the logo, the text "檢索中： Academic Search Premier" is displayed, followed by a link "選擇資料庫" (Select Database). Below this, there is a search input field with "檢索" (Search) and "清除" (Clear) buttons. Further down, a row of links includes "檢索選項" (Search Options), "進階檢索" (Advanced Search), "視覺檢索" (Visual Search), "檢索歷史/警告" (Search History/Warnings), and "偏好設定" (Preferences).

At the bottom of the page, a footer contains the following text: "EBSCO 支援網站" (EBSCO Support Website), "隱私權政策" (Privacy Policy), "使用條款" (Terms of Use), and "版權" (Copyright). Below this, it says "© 2008 EBSCO Industries, Inc. All Rights Reserved." At the very bottom, there is a green banner with the text "EBSCO Publishing Green Initiatives" and a recycling symbol.

It's 1 p.m. at Mercer Elementary School in Shaker Heights, Ohio, and Lena Paskewitz's kindergarten class is filled with the happy hum of kids getting ready for their favorite part of the day: lunch. Caleigh Leiken, 6, is toting a pink Hello Kitty bag her mom has packed with goodies: strawberry yogurt, string cheese, some veggies and a cookie. But there's one childhood staple missing--a PB&J. Caleigh was diagnosed with a peanut and tree-nut allergy when she was just 7 months old. Nuts are a no-no at her table in the Mercer lunchroom. Her allergy-free friends can sit there, but only if their lunches have been stored in a special bin and carefully inspected by the teacher. Home, too, is a nut-free zone for Caleigh. When she goes trick-or-treating this week, her candy will be scarier than any costume; she won't be able to eat any of it for fear it's tainted with peanut residue. For Caleigh's mom, Erika Friedman--whose other two kids also have allergies-- food can seem like an enemy. "We plan everything," says Friedman. "It's our job--actually, everyone's job--to keep them safe."

There was a time when food allergies were of little concern to the medical community. Today about 11 million Americans suffer from them, and many scientists agree the numbers are climbing. Most significantly, peanut allergies--among the most dire--doubled between 1997 and 2002 in children under 5. "Clearly, the number has increased in the younger population," says Dr. Hugh Sampson, a food-allergy pioneer at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in N.Y. "We suspect that [in the future], the numbers in general are going to increase." Allergists say they're now seeing more children with multiple allergies than ever before, not just to 1950s staples such as milk and wheat--but to global foods we have adopted since, like sesame and kiwi. And allergies many kids outgrow--like those to eggs--seem to be lingering longer than they did in the past.

Parents of very young children now worry over the introduction of each new food, on alert for the first signs of trouble, such as rashes, diarrhea and vomiting. Deaths are rare, but the most-sensitive kids' throats may swell and completely close up if they're exposed to the wrong foods. Even if your school-age child is allergy-free, you still have to be concerned about inadvertently triggering an allergic reaction in one of your kid's friends or classmates. Dairy-free birthday cakes are de rigueur these days, as are no-peanut Halloween parties.

But why do allergies appear to be on the rise? One of the most intriguing theories, dubbed the "hygiene hypothesis," is that we've all become too clean. The immune system is designed to battle dangerous foreign invaders like parasites and viruses and infections. But clean water, antibiotics and vaccines have eliminated some of our most toxic challenges. Intriguing research even posits that kids born by Caesarean section, which have risen 40 percent in the last decade, could be at higher risk for allergies, perhaps because they were never exposed to healthy bacteria in their mothers' birth canals. Without hard-core adversaries, the theory goes, the immune system starts battling the innocuous--egg or wheat--instead.

Most kids outgrow an allergy to eggs--usually, to the whites--by 5. Still, 600,000 Americans are affected.

SHELLFISH

A common food allergy, it afflicts 6 million--2 percent of Americans. 1.2 million more are allergic to fish.

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with 'Keyword', 'Subjects', 'Publications', and 'Indexes'. The search bar contains 'heart disease' and has 'Search' and 'Clear' buttons. Below the search bar, there are links for 'Advanced Search', 'Visual Search', 'Search History/Alerts', and 'Preferences'. On the left, a 'Narrow Results by' sidebar lists various categories like 'Publication', 'Subject', 'Age', and 'Database'. The main results area shows 'All Results: 1-10 of 24117' and 'Page: 1 2 3 4 5 Next'. A green arrow points to the 'Next' link. Below this, the first result is 'A Causal Model of Health-Related Quality of Life in Thai Patients With Heart-Failure'. A large, semi-transparent grey box with blue text is overlaid on the results, stating: '滑鼠移到圖標上 即可預覽文章索摘' (Move the mouse over the icon to preview the article abstract). The right sidebar contains 'Limit your results' options, including 'Full Text' and 'References Available', and a 'Filter by Publication Date' section with a date range from 1946 to 2008. At the bottom, there are links for 'HTML Full Text' and 'PDF Full Text' for the first result, and a 'Show all 7 images' link for the second result. The bottom status bar shows '完成' (Complete) and '網際網路' (Internet).

Title: A Causal Model of Health-Related Quality of Life in Thai Patients With Heart-Failure.
Source: Journal of Nursing Scholarship
Date: 2008
Subjects: HEART failure, WORLD health, HEALTH attitudes, ...
Abstract: Background: Heart failure is an increasing global health problem which adversely affects all aspects of a patient's health-related quality of life (HRQOL). Purpose: The hypothesized causal model of HRQOL in Thai heart-failure patients was based on Wilson and Cleary's HRQOL conceptual model. We examined causal relationships among bio-physiological status, symptoms, functional status, general health perception (GHP), and HRQOL shown in the model, and added an additional item—social support. Methods: A stratified four-stage random sampling method was used to obtain 422 heart-failure patients 18 years of age and older who visited nine outpatient hospital clinics from five regions of Thailand including...

Abstract: The article considers the potential effects of global warming on the animal visitors in exchange for pollination. Jane Memmott of the University of York used the data from the 1929 book, "Flowers and Insects," to study pollination. Its author, C. D. Michener, recorded the visits between 429 plant species and their 1,420 pollinators. On the basis of the data, Memmott has observed in several plants and pollinators, Memmott and her colleagues predict that the activities of plants and pollinators will advance by one to three weeks by the year 2050.

The screenshot displays the EBSCO Export Manager web interface. At the top, a navigation bar includes links for 'Keyword', 'Subjects', 'Publications', and 'Indexes'. On the right, there are links for 'Not fan? Sign in here.', 'Sign Out', 'Folder', 'New Features!', 'Help', and 'Exit'. The main header area features the EBSCO logo, the text 'Export Manager', and a 'Back' link. Below this, a green bar contains the text 'Save E-mail'. The main content area shows 'Number of items to be saved: 4' and a checkbox labeled 'Remove these items from folder after saving'. A 'Save' button is prominently displayed. A modal dialog box is open, titled 'Save citations to a file formatted for:', with five radio button options: 'Direct Export to EndNote, ProCite, or Reference Manager' (selected), 'Generic bibliographic management software', 'Citations in BibTeX format', 'Citations in MARC21 format', and 'Direct Export to RefWorks'. The footer contains links to 'EBSCO Support Site', 'Privacy Policy', 'Terms of Use', and 'Copyright', along with a copyright notice for 2008 EBSCO Industries, Inc. and a logo for 'EBSCO Publishing Green Initiatives'. The browser's address bar at the bottom shows a URL starting with 'delivery?vid=12&hid=9&sid=cdcef7e6-62a1-4f59-8aea-139063a3490b%40sessionmgr104'.

The screenshot displays the National Central Library (NCL) website interface. A modal window titled "您的警示已經建立" (Your alert has been created) is open, showing the details of a newly created RSS alert. The alert is named "taiwan economics 全文 on 2009-04-01 05:01 AM" and is set to search the "Academic Search Premier" database for "taiwan economics 全文". The alert frequency is set to "Daily" and will run for "六個月" (six months). The RSS feed URL is provided as <http://rss.ebscohost.com/AlertSyndicationService/Syndication.aspx/GetFeed?guid=1965877>. Below the alert details, instructions are given on how to use the RSS alert, including steps to copy the feed URL and paste it into a feed reader. The main page shows a search results page with a sidebar on the left containing navigation links like "主題" (Subject), "出版品" (Publications), and "公司" (Company). The search results are displayed in a list, with the first two items highlighted. The first item is "LED sales rise due to Olympics" from the "American Ceramic Society Bulletin", and the second item is "The Meaning of the Ecological Mission from the Experience of Taiwan Economic Development Model" by Shun-Chung Yang. The right sidebar contains a "縮小您的結果" (Refine your results) section with filters for "全文" (Full text), "有參考資料" (With references), and "學術 (同儕評鑑) 期刊" (Academic (peer-reviewed) journals). It also includes a date range selector set to "1973" to "2009" and a "更新結果" (Update results) button. At the bottom, there is a "資料夾內有文章" (Articles in folder) section with links to specific articles and a "前往: 資料夾檢視" (Go to: folder view) button.

Table 2. Effect of different case definitions on the sensitivity, specificity and positive and negative predictive values for JEV infection in children

Case definition	JE positive (N = 54)	JE negative (N = 62)	JE unknown (N = 33)	All (N = 149)	Sensitivity (%) ^a	Specificity (%) ^a	PPV (%)	NPV (%)
AES	35	38	23	96	65 (56–73)	39 (30–48)	48	56
AES, acute paralysis or both	47	46	26	119	87 (81–93)	26 (18–34)	51	70
AES, meningism or both	48	48	29	125	89 (83–95)	23 (15–30)	50	70
AES at any time during hospitalization	41	44	25	110	76 (68–84)	29 (21–37)	48	58

AES, acute encephalitis syndrome (defined as acute febrile illness and change in mental status or new onset seizures); JEV, Japanese encephalitis virus; NPV, negative predictive value; PPV, positive predictive value.
^a 95% confidence intervals are presented in parentheses.

Category	1991 / 2004 Prevalence (%)	1995 / Hypothetical Prevalence (%)
Normal and underweight	60	66
Overweight	26	27
Obese	14	7
